Yuriko Tada is counsel at Arkin Solbakken LLP. She has experience both as a practicing litigator and as a law firm client, having worked as a litigation associate at a major firm and as an Assistant General Counsel at a Big Four accounting firm.

Ms. Tada practiced for several years at Willkie Farr & Gallagher LLP, before joining the Office of General Counsel at Deloitte & Touche LLP. After a short period as a stay-at-home parent, she returned to legal practice as a litigator. She also was a Counsel at Sher Tremonte LLP.

Notable Representations

Ms. Tada has represented clients in federal and state court litigations and before regulatory bodies and governmental agencies, with a special focus on cases relating to securities fraud, financial reporting, and auditor liability.

Her work has included securities litigations, complex commercial disputes, internal investigations, and regulatory matters, with a particular focus on defending cases involving alleged accounting irregularities, auditor malpractice, and other financial reporting issues.

She also authored amicus briefs in a series of high-profile civil rights cases, and assisted in a widely publicized arbitration involving Major League Baseball.
